

RUTGERSUNIVERSITYPRESS

ANNOUNCING A NEW SERIES

THE POLITICS OF MARRIAGE AND GENDER: GLOBAL ISSUES IN LOCAL CONTEXTS

Series Editor

Péter Berta, University College London, School of Slavonic and East European Studies/Institute for Global Prosperity, p.bera@ucl.ac.uk

Series Description

We are eager to consider original scholarship on cutting-edge themes and issues for this series. The intention of this series is to fill a gap in research by examining the politics of marriage and related practices, ideologies, and interpretations, and to address the key question of how the politics of marriage has affected social, cultural, and political processes, relations, and boundaries. The series will look at the complex relationships between the politics of marriage and gender, ethnic, national, religious, racial, and class identities, and will analyze how these relationships contribute to the development and management of social and political differences, inequalities, and conflicts.

To submit a proposal for a new book in the series, please contact:

Kimberly Guinta, Executive Editor

Rutgers University Press

848-445-7786

Kimberly.guinta@rutgers.edu

Before submitting a manuscript, please send a brief email of inquiry summarizing your project. Visit our website for manuscript submission guidelines: <https://www.rutgersuniversitypress.org/author-toolkit>